Proposes a new appropriation upstream from their divisions, and (3) assists the State to determine if additional water is available for future water specific exceptions. The filing of a statement (1) provides a record of water use, (2) enables the State to notify such users if someone violates Section 1914 appropriate water users as set forth in Water Code section 5100.

An appropriate right is required for use of water on nonirrigated land and for storage of water. Generally, appropriate rights may be exercised only when there is a surplus not needed by riparian water users. Since 1914, new appropriators have been required to obtain a permit and license system.

A riparian right enables an owner of land bordering a natural lake or stream to take and use water on his riparian land. Riparian land must be in the same watershed as the water source and must never have been served from sources of supply by an intervening parcel without reservation of the riparian right to the servient parcel. Generally, a riparian user must share the water supply with other riparian users.

Riparian rights may be used to divert the natural flow of a stream but may not be used to store water for later use or divert water which originates in a different watershed, water previously stored by others, return flows from use of groundwater, or other "foreign" water to the natural stream.

Reservoirs are required to divert the natural right to the servient parcel. A riparian user must never have been served by an intervening parcel without a different watershed, water previously stored by others, return flows from use of groundwater, or other "foreign" water to the natural stream.

There are two principal types of surface water rights in California. They are riparian and appropriative rights.

GENERAL INFORMATION PERTAINING TO WATER RIGHTS IN CALIFORNIA

The above discussion is provided for general information. For more specific information concerning water rights, please contact an attorney or write to this office. We have several pamphlets available. They include:

- "Statements of Water Diversions and Use"
- "Information Pertaining to Water Rights in California"
- "Water Rights for Stockponds Constructed Prior to 1969"
- "Appropriation of Water in California"

Statement of Water Diversions and Use must be filed by riparian and pre-1914 appropriative users. The filing of a statement (1) provides a record of water appropriated by riparian users. The filing of a statement (2) enables the State to notify such users if someone proposes a new appropriation use, (2) upstream from their diversion, and (3) assists the State to determine if additional water is available for future appropriators.

An appropriate right is required for use of water on nonriparian land and for storage of water. Generally, appropriative rights may be exercised only when there is a surplus used to store water for later use or to divert water which originates in a different watershed, or return flows from use of groundwater.

A riparian right enables an owner of land bordering a natural lake or stream to take and use water on his riparian land. Riparian land must be in the same watershed as the water source and must never have been severed from the source of supply by an intervening parcel without reservation of the riparian right to the severed parcel. Generally, a riparian user must share the water supply with other riparian users. Riparian rights may be used to divert the natural flow of a stream but may not be used to store water for later use or to divert water which originates in a different watershed, or return flows from use of groundwater.

There are two principal types of surface water rights in California. They are riparian and appropriative rights.
